

INTERIOR DESIGN[®]

MARCH 2021

waves of wellness

Matteo Thun & Partners

project Waldkliniken Eisenberg, Germany.

standout Surrounded by forest, the 177,600-square-foot circular building—the country’s largest orthopedic center—features local larch and oak for its facade and interiors, part of a “hospitecture” philosophy in which the aesthetics and comforts typical of hospitality projects are combined with the rigorous clinical requirements of a healthcare facility.

photography clockwise from below: Gionata Xerra (3); HGEsch (2). ➤

“The aim is to positively influence the relationship between physical space and human well-being”

